Torso part appears

PITTSBURGH — Investigators are checking to see whether a torso that washed up on the shores of Lake Erie in Ohio belongs to a man whose dismembered remains were found in two shallow graves in Butler County.

The 16-inch piece of torso was discovered about 10 days ago, said Detective Bob Lippert of the Erie County (Ohio) Sheriff's Department.

Butler County Coroner William Young said he was notified of the discovery on Monday.

Young said a DNA test would be performed on the torso to determine whether it matched the remains of Brian Mirena, 21, of Pittsburgh. Mirena's skull, arms and legs were unearthed last week in Moraine State Park, about 60 miles north of Pittsburgh. A man found Mirena's leg bone protruding from the ground while walking his dog on April 21.

Mirena, a suspected drug dealer who was free on bail pending a trial on drug possession and traffic charges, had been missing since Feb. 28. Late last week, police arrested William Kuhn III of Mount Oliver and charged him with Mirena's death.

Lippert said the nude torso, which had a gunshot wound, was found along a private beach about 10 miles east of Sandusky, Ohio.

U.S. marines kill three Liberians at embassy

Nyenati Allison
The Associated Press

MONROVIA, Liberia -- U.S. Marine guards shot and killed three Liberians firing toward the U.S. embassy Tuesday as fierce battles engulfed the capital, littering its streets with bodies a day after a cease-fire collapsed.

The shootings, the first exchange of gunfire involving U.S. troops since Liberia's civil war reignited in early April, came as new factional fighting left the 10-day-old, U.S.-brokered truce in tatters.

One U.S. Marine was grazed -- possibly by a cartridge from his own weapon -- but required no medical attention, said two senior defense officials in Washington, speaking on condition of anonymity.

At an army barracks a few blocks from the embassy, the floor of a clinic was awash in blood as scores of victims were carried in or dragged themselves through the door. Doctors said at least three people had died and 60 were wounded, many civilians.

Fire from mortars, machine guns and rocket-propelled grenades echoed through the city, forcing George Moose, the U.S. assistant secretary of state for African affairs, to cancel talks at the embassy with government, peacekeepers and factional leaders.

Moose, in a telephone interview from the embassy, warned of a "major catastrophe" if the fighting continued. He blamed warlord-turned-politician Charles Taylor, whose standoff with a rival April 6 provoked two weeks of warfare culminating in the cease-fire.

"Taylor will be held responsible," Moose said. "If he persists in taking power, he should expect a strong international reaction."

In Monrovia's Mamba Point diplomatic section, where the embassy is located, rival factions battled for control through the afternoon. At least nine bodies were scattered on the streets of the beachfront neighborhood. It was unclear whether those killed died while fighting or were caught in crossfire.

Similar chaos spread across the capital. Chawki Bsaibes, a Lebanese businessman who runs the Mamba Point Hotel, said Tuesday's fighting was the worst he had seen in the city.

In separate incidents at the embassy, three Liberians were killed and one wounded by U.S. Marine gunfire, defense officials in Washington said. The most serious exchange took place at a guard post near U.S. Ambassador William Milam's residence, Pentagon spokesman Kevin Bacon said.

In all, the Marines counted four separate shooting incidents beginning in late afternoon. In two cases, the Marines could see their attackers and returned fire using M-16 automatic rifles and M-60 machine guns.

"We don't know what (the attackers) were aiming at. Fire came in and it was returned," Bacon said. The attackers' identities were not known.

The Marines are part of a group of 270 -- from an offshore force of almost 3,000 -- who are protecting the embassy.

At the clinic, located at the Barclay Training Center army barracks, rocket-propelled grenades smashed into the grounds as doctors treated patients.

WFAL jocks to bare butts for bucks

The BG News

If you're looking to buy a great piece of ass, two WFAL deejays are looking to sell.

Members of the University community can pay to have messages written on the bodies of Joe Peiffer and Brian D'Aurelio. They will run across campus today in jock straps to raise money for the Campus Escort Service.

"We are raising money for the Campus Escort Service because they escort us during the run and to point out the campus escorts will assist you across campus no matter what you're wearing," D'Aurelio said.

Peiffer and D'Aurelio, hosts of The Big Hairy Posse Show, will start at West Hall and move past the Union at about 5:45 p.m. Then, they will run toward the Math Science Building and back to West Hall through the sorority houses.

To raise money, Peiffer and D'Aurelio will sell spaces on their bodies. The cost is $3 for the torso and $10 for the butt. Students can sign up today in 120 West Hall and charge the fee to their Bursar account.

Peiffer said people can write almost any message on their bodies.

"We've had everything from 'Hi Mom!' right above our nipples to 'Bye Dr. Olscamp' on our buttocks."

Peiffer said this event should make people relax before finals.

"Hopefully it will break the tension before finals," he said.

"We've had everything from 'Hi mom!' right above our nipples, to 'Bye Dr. Olscamp' on our buttocks."

Joe Peiffer

WFAL DJ and general manager

"If nothing else, you can feel better that you are not us. You can think to yourself 'I'm not those skinny white men with beer pouches running across campus in jock straps.'"

D'Aurelio said he would like to see people come out and watch the run.

"Two years ago, we had a pretty good crowd," he said. "And we'd love to see more this year."

D'Aurelio said it's a unique way to say goodbye.

"I will graduate in a week and a half and I can't think of a better way to say goodbye."

Clinton offers U.S. help to Israel for halting terrorism

Barry Schweld
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON -- President Clinton extended U.S. help to Israel in countering terrorism Tuesday. Prime Minister Shimon Peres said the accord strengthens Israel's hand in pursuing peace with Syria and Lebanon.

The peace process would perish if terrorists succeeded, Peres said, because "terror would win the day."

Clinton said terrorists "aim to kill the growing hope for peace itself."

"With every new step along the path to peace, its enemies grow more and more desperate," Clinton said. "They know a new day is dawning in the Middle East."

As the signing ceremony took place in the Roosevelt Room of the White House, Israel and Hezbollah guerrillas exchanged rocket and mortar fire in southern Lebanon, the first major breach of a U.S.-brokered cease-fire that took effect Saturday. Israelis retaliated against guerrilla rockets fired at an outpost of the Israeli-backed South Lebanon Army in Israel's self-proclaimed security zone just inside Lebanon.

The cease-fire was designed to protect civilians on both sides from attack but does not stop the conflict that tests Israel's capacity to defend itself.

Tuesday's agreement formalized Clinton's offer in March to provide Israel with technology, research and information on terrorists. During his visit Peres also gained a U.S. promise to help Israel with a laser defense system against Hezbollah's Katyusha rockets and, in the interim, a possible adaptation of the U.S. Navy's Phalanx missile-defense system designed for warships.

"We must do everything in our power to stop the killing," Clinton said.

Clinton's support for Israel and showcasing of Peres, who is in a tough battle for election May 29, seems designed to boost the prime minister and endorse his policy of trading land for peace with the Arabs.

The leader of Israel's Likud opposition, Benjamin Netanyahu, is more skeptical of Arab promises. While he is committed to Palestinian autonomy, he also is dubious about an Israeli pullback from the occupied Golan Heights, a buffer of 470 square miles inside Syria.

"Don't expect me now to lay down a map," Peres said at a joint news conference.

Clinton and Peres were a bit playful before the cameras. The prime minister used his pen and a scrap of paper to show the president how his name would look in Hebrew.

They exchanged compliments. Peres said Clinton had "played a major role in bringing peace between us and Jordan, between us and the Palestinians."

Clinton said inviting Peres here now was "extremely appropriate" and "the right thing to do." He told reporters also that Israeli voters "have shown pretty good judgment a long while now."

The last election carried the late Yitzhak Rabin to the prime minister's office. He proceeded to conclude agreements with the Palestine Liberation Organization and Jordan in which Israel relinquished territory for pledges of peace.

Peres is expected to make similar offers to Syria and Lebanon if he wins.

Bill may speed death sentences

Paul Souhrada
The Associated Press

COLUMBUS -- The Senate has voted to close a loophole in Ohio's death penalty law that has allowed at least 10 murderers to escape execution.

The Senate on Tuesday voted 29-3 to change a state law that requires the same jury that decides guilt in a capital case to also consider whether to impose the death penalty. The bill now goes to the House for consideration.

"It's time to stand up for the families of the victims," said Sen. James Carnes, R-St. Clairsville, the bill's sponsor.

"It is clear, very clear, that the people of Ohio want the death penalty law."

Carnes said problems can now arise if sentences are subsequently overturned on appeal years later because there is almost no chance of impaneling the original trial jury. As a result, reimposition of the death penalty is precluded and life in prison is the maximum sentence allowed.

Senate Minority Leader Ben

Espy of Columbus disputed Carnes' prediction that the bill would speed the death penalty process in Ohio, which has not executed anyone since 1963.

"I'm against the death penalty, but I support this bill," Espy said. He explained that the bill is a common sense remedy to the problem of locating the original jury years after the trial.

The House, meanwhile, approved a Senate bill that makes Ohio the final state to recognize advanced practice nurses.

The bill, passed 96-0, creates four categories of advanced practice nurses -- certified registered anesthetists, clinical nurse specialists, certified nurse midwives and certified nurse practitioners -- and makes them eligible to receive Medicaid payments.

Sen. Merle Kearns, R-Springfield, the bill's sponsor, estimated that more than 3,000 of the 124,000 registered nurses in the state would qualify for the new designation, which requires advanced training.

Letters to the Editor

Fences demolish student's dreams

For many of us, Bowling Green is a place where we come to live and learn, grow and prosper in the four, five or even six years we're here. It becomes home to many of us as we distance ourselves from our parents and find new friends and a sense of community. Yet that community that Dr. Ribeau wants so much to build is being torn down as we speak.

If many of you haven't noticed yet, our BGSU has us herding across campus, wandering around fences and trudging through mud and grass to get to class. And if that wasn't enough, now they are ripping up the roots of Bowling Green's foundation in what used to be known as the "Old Football Field." I understand change occurs and that Dr. Ribeau wants to make that change in order to build a "better community," but these extreme measures aren't necessary.

Today as I walked across campus, I felt a sense of nostalgia past my old residence hall and other places that hold memories from the past four years. But as I neared the bell tower, I saw the magnificent trees under which I used to sit and read come tumbling down before my eyes. All I could think of was "Thank God I'm Leaving this Place!"

Building a community does not mean building high-tech facilities to make way to the future. The focus of community should involve preserving the environment and creating an atmosphere that we all want to be a part of.

Riot in the dorm room cell block

Matt
Pierce

With my entire political mind state thrown into a tizzy by an astute e-mail criticism of last week's column coupled with extreme class-related stress, I revert this week to a topic that has been potential column fodder since day one of this semester: life in BGSU's dormitories.

I cannot overstate the joy I feel from my impending relocation from Room 221 to Apartment 369. A hellish environment invariably fosters a hellish psyche. I firmly believe that the on-campus housing sentences we receive are one of the leading causes of student stress.

That prison metaphor bears drawing out. The University sentences you to two years of annoyance, which you pay them (a lot) for. There are a lot of constricting rules, my favorite of which being that a member of the opposite sex may stay overnight in your room, provided they don't sleep. Uh-huh.

Like a prison, everyone pretty much eats at the same time (it's 4:30 - I must be hungry!), and the food is lousy. The Grade Z beef stuffed into cafeteria enchiladas has driven many a hungry kid to vegetarianism. That is, if they've got money left for vegetables after shelling out three spacebucks for each box of Pop-Tarts.

The dorms have the advantage over prisons in that you're not striped and deloused when you arrive. That doesn't mean that I wouldn't mind a good hosing down after a visit to my dorm's vile communal bathroom.

Oh, the things I've seen. Not to get too scatological, but beer cans in the shower, sinks full of soup, hair (or both), and my floormates' inability to grasp the concept of the flush have always confounded me. The filth pits are only cleaned daily, which might be enough if some residents possessed the slightest modicum of respect for their fellow students. These vermin seem to equate their lack of responsibility in actual bathroom cleaning with a lack of responsibility in keeping it clean.

Lack of respect is not limited to lavatories. At least in my building, quiet hours are but a suggestion, and fear of theft or vandalism of personal property is real. Apparently, living in these "prisons" lead some to a criminal mentality.

Of course, it's not all that bad. I've met some truly beautiful people in my dorm. Then again, I've also met hateful, ignorant people who ridicule those who look or act differently than they and who possess a predatory nature towards women. There is no choosing who you live with, and so there is no escape.

Some attempt escape through chemical manipulation of their physiology. These people generally enjoy the dorms, but when you're drunk all the time, you enjoy wherever you are. (Explaining the popularity of some BG bars.) Finally, dorm folk must survive living intimately with people whose personalities and lifestyles may be totally incompatible with their own.

This is more of a problem for my roommates than for me, as this college has turned me into a raving asshole. Roommates of P must endure constant complaints, existential whining, and "Woo-Hah!!!" played 12 times in a row.

You may not agree with me, and if so, good. That's one more apartment available for someone like me who is utterly fed up with these virtual slums. The check-out process does, after all, feel like an eviction, if not parole.

One last dorm/prison contrast: prisons catch fire during riots, dorms when somebody has a headache.

Freeze your freakin' head, man

Tom
Mather

For all of you who have ever been scared of the dark, don't worry. If you have an aversion to deep, murky basements, have no fear. If you need the night light to make sure that monsters scarier than Snuffalufagus aren't hiding in the shadows, rest easy. When you turn the light on, it will just be - HUMAN BRAINS!!

Seriously, a student at Yale University recently found canned human brains buried in the subbasement of a dorm. Kind of makes you wonder about all of these "renovations" they're doing on campus. And why won't they let us go between the buildings?

According to an A.P. article, they found over 2,000 brains and pieces of brains canned with formaldehyde in gallon jars. Despite what you may be thinking, these brains were not the victims of psychopath roommates who were testing that theory about getting a 4.0 if your roommate dies. It also was not part of some crazy experiment to condense Food Services and Biology into one department. (Did you ever notice that you don't see meat being delivered to the cafeteria, but they never seem to run out? Nevermind, it's probably just a coincidence.)

There were rumors on campus at Yale for years about groups of brains buried somewhere in one of the dorms. So one day a bright young fellow named Christopher Wahl decided to look for them and Presto! There they were.

"This is proof that you should believe every rumor you hear."

Mr. Wahl was quoted as saying, "This is not like finding canned fruit in the basement." Indeed not. It's more like finding your canned Uncle Joe and Aunt Betty.

Mr. Wahl kept his findings secret for over a year because he was afraid of getting expelled. I definitely see the predicament he was in.

"Mr. Wahl, where did you learn about these human brains? Who told you to dig them up?"

"I learned it by watching you, all right? I learned it by watching YOU!"

Wahl also said he was relieved that, "no one really asked, 'What were you doing skulking around the bottom of the dorm?'" This way no one has to know that he was really just trying on woman's lingerie.

It turns out the brains and stacks of notes found are all that remains of the work of the world's first neurosurgeon, Dr. Harvey Cushing. Many of Dr. Cushing's patients suffered from brain tumors and other disfiguring diseases of the brain. In fact, Dr. Cushing was one of the first doctors to dismiss the theory that cancer in women was the result of "tumor envy."

I was very disturbed when I read about this finding. I wasn't disturbed that someone had discovered human brains. What disturbed me was wondering how in the world could someone lose over 2,000 brains? Talk about screwing up. How was this person treated as a child? "Johnny, you're so stupid. I bet that not only would you lose your head if it wasn't screwed on tight, but you'd also lose about 2,000 others."

Second, just exactly how civilized are we? Canning people's brains is only the latest craze. We've been freezing people and their heads (Walt Disney among others) in a process called cryogenics for the last 80 years. We seem to have an incredible tendency to treat people like food. We store them away, and then when we find a cure for their disease, we think we'll just stick them in the microwave on defrost for 2:00 minutes (cook level 4) and everything will be hunky dory. The only explanation I could think of on why we "can" people is that somewhere along the line someone thought, "Well, it works for pickles, might as well try it on sis."

As long as we have this technology, however, I propose that we take it on into the next century. Why should we stop at preserving a person's head? I'm starting a movement to save other body parts too. If we all believe, we can make it a reality. People will start protesting across the nation. They'll hold S.O.S. (Save Our Spleens) rallies, until one day the government will cave in.

It won't stop with body organs either. Did you lose your arm in a farming accident? The doctors weren't able to reattach it? Freeze it or can it, and if it still can't be reattached in the future, it will make a nice toy for the grandkids to play with.

Or maybe in the future, the doctors will advertise their services directly. They'll have their own infomercials. "Can't reach that itch on your back? Do you feel "slowed down" when both of your hands are full? You don't need a backscratcher or a friendly neighbor to help you out. I think what you need is an extra arm! Imagine, placed in the square of your back, an extra arm. No more stretching to pull out your wallet. Be honest. You've always wanted to be able to juggle and thumb wrestle at the same time, am I right? Well, now you can!

Yes, that's right folks. Be the envy of everyone on your block! With only 37 easy payments of $19.95 you too can become attractive, popular, and have lots of dates! After all, no one will notice your bald spot when all they can talk about is your extra arm!

-And this month only, with your purchase of a third arm, you'll also receive absolutely free EYES IN THE BACK OF YOUR HEAD! Now, not only will you be able to see who's behind you, but you can wave to them too!" I can't be certain, but I think that somewhere out there, wherever they are, the aliens are laughing at us.

Ohio couple witnessed Tasmanian massacre

The Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio -- A shooting spree at a Tasmanian restaurant that left 35 people dead occurred 100 yards from an Ohio couple who were having a picnic outside.

David and Sandy Lawrence, a Springfield couple who have lived in Australia for the past year, decided to go sightseeing Sunday at the historic Port Arthur prison complex. With them were Nell Niceley, of Springfield, and Julia Lawrence of Atlanta.

The group decided to have a picnic instead of eating in the nearby Port Arthur restaurant.

"About halfway through the picnic, we started hearing gunshots and saw bullets hitting the water," Mrs. Lawrence, 52, told the Springfield News-Sun in a telephone interview Monday. "I thought someone was trying to hit the seagulls. I'm just shaking thinking about it."

The group got in their car and fled to the exit gate, but it was locked.

"Thank God we didn't turn around and hit the entrance gate," said Mrs. Lawrence. "He (the gunman) was shooting all the people at the entrance gate. God was on our side."

She said they took shelter in an old cottage, along with 75 to 100 others.

"All the people were screaming; it was just terrible. We were all there in that little cottage, not knowing what was going on," she said.

Mrs. Lawrence said she and her husband tried to help a woman who had witnessed the shooting in the restaurant and had gone into shock.

"She was just like a zombie. All we could do was keep her warm and talk to her," Mrs. Lawrence said.

They sat huddled in the cottage for two hours before security officers retrieved them and took them to safety at an information center.

Martin Bryant, 28, was formally charged with murder Tuesday in his hospital room in Hobart.

Midwestern cleanup of spring flooding begins

Margaret Lillard
The Associated Press

Torrential rains eased and the cleanup began Tuesday in the Midwest, where hundreds of people were forced out of their homes by weekend storms that killed six people, including two children.

The storm system, which had dropped up to 9 inches of rain on Illinois, Ohio, Indiana and Missouri since Sunday, broke up and moved on, leaving behind swamped homes, power outages and plenty of damage.

Donald Beachler watched as workers fixed the battered roof of his fireworks company outside Dayton, Ohio, which was raked by winds up to 120 mph. Shingles and other debris were scattered around his Imperial Enterprises Inc.

"You've got to go on with life," Beachler said. He estimated the damage at $100,000.

In Dayton's Deeds Park, a stand of towering Siberian elms toppled onto the streets. Cleanup crews used chain saws and chippers to clear them away.

"These trees are top-heavy," Charles Barlow said as he helped clean up. "When a storm gets ahold of them, it blows them over."

Two deaths in Ohio were blamed on the weather: a 6-year-old boy who grabbed a live electrical wire in his flooded back yard, and a

The storm caused widespread flash flooding in the St. Louis area, where about 500 homes were damaged. Most of that water had receded by Monday.

State program helps teen-age mothers stay in school

Jacqui Podzius Cook
The Associated Press

CLEVELAND -- Teen-age mothers enrolled in a unique state program that pays welfare recipients to stay in school were more likely to graduate high school than those not in the program, a new study found.

The report, to be released Wednesday, says 45.6 percent of the teen-agers enrolled in school at the time they entered the Learning, Earning and Parenting program went on to graduate or received a General Equivalency Degree.

Of those not in LEAP, 38.6 percent graduated or received a GED.

"These results are important because there's very little evidence of programs that have been successful with this group, and the LEAP findings point to some clear successes," said Judith Gueron, president of Manpower Demonstration Research Corporation, a New York-based nonprofit group that conducted the study.

LEAP pays single, teen-age parents on welfare an extra $62 a month if they attend school regularly. Likewise, they lose $62 a month if they drop out or have too many unexcused absences.

Most teen-age mothers with one child receive about $274 a month before the LEAP payment.

The program has been praised by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services and is considered a model for other states, said Ron Rhodes, Ohio Department of Human Services spokesman.

"LEAP is one of our shining successes," Rhodes said Tuesday. "Whenever anybody asks what is working well for Ohio and its welfare reforms, LEAP is one of the things we show them."

There are 10,106 teens currently enrolled in LEAP; there have been 70,535 participants since the program began in 1989. The vast majority are young mothers, although single fathers with custody are eligible.

The study looked at 913 teens three years after they became eligible for LEAP. About half that number had been exempted from LEAP for the purpose of tracking its success.

The teens were from Cuyahoga, Franklin, Hamilton, Lawrence, Lucas, Muskingham and Stark counties, which have about half the statewide LEAP caseload.

A key to graduation rate, the study says, is getting young mothers into LEAP before they drop out of school. Of those not in school at the time they joined LEAP, 18.6 percent graduated or got a GED. However, 22.1 percent did not.

The study also found that 38.9 percent of the LEAP participants studied got a job within three years after entering LEAP, compared with 27.4 percent in the non-LEAP group.

Perhaps the biggest success of LEAP so far has been in Cleveland, where one in six eligible teen-age mothers lives, according to the study.

The report said 33 percent of Cleveland teen-agers who enrolled in LEAP while already in school had earned a diploma

"These results are important because there's very little evidence of programs that have been successful with this group, and the LEAP findings point to some clear successes."

Judith Gueron
president of MDRC

three years later, compared with 24 percent not in LEAP.

Researchers attributed the success to greater availability of services, such as school-based day care, and LEAP case managers assigned to the schools.

Leonard Tetlak, Cuyahoga County's LEAP coordinator, said he is cautiously pleased with the study's findings.

"You're never really totally encouraged because there's always so much to do," Tetlak said. "It's such a different population to work with -- you always have to be on your guard and pay attention to the positive things that happen and get by the negative things."

Study finds possible cancer link

Brenda C. Coleman
The Associated Press

CHICAGO -- Middle-aged women who ate a lot of red meat were more likely than those who ate a little to develop a certain type of lymph cancer, a study in Iowa found.

The study's authors cautioned against over emphasizing the results.

Studies of red meat and lymphoma have yielded conflicting findings. A study in Italy found a link. A study in Nebraska by the National Cancer Institute did not.

"This is one report, and so we're not making any public health recommendations off it," said co-author Dr. James R. Cerhan, an assistant professor of preventive medicine and environmental health at the University of Iowa College of Medicine in Iowa City.

"The findings support what the American Cancer Society and the National Institutes of Health are saying ... Cut back on red meat, cut back on saturated fat and increase fruits and vegetables in the diet."

He and his colleagues reported their findings in Wednesday's issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association.

Red meat has previously been linked to colon cancer, and animal fat is believed to raise the risk of prostate cancer and heart disease.

In the Iowa study, women ages

55 to 69 who ate more than 36 servings of red meat per month were about twice as likely to develop non-Hodgkin's lymphoma over seven years as women who ate fewer than 22 servings per month, said the researchers, who took into account other factors that affect risk, such as age. A serving was 4 to 6 ounces.

The study involved 35,156 women, of whom 104 developed non-Hodgkin's lymphoma.

When researchers looked at types of red meat -- such as bacon, hot dogs, hamburger and beef as a main dish -- the only type significantly linked to non-Hodgkin's lymphoma was hamburger.

Higher consumption of animal protein in general, as well as of animal fat and monounsaturated fat -- the type found in olive oil -- also were linked to higher rates of the cancer.

Non-Hodgkin's lymphoma, which cripples the immune system, will strike an estimated 52,700 Americans this year and kill 23,300, according to the American Cancer Society.

The incidence of the disease has risen about 75 percent since the early 1970s for reasons that are unclear. It is known that organ transplant recipients and people infected with HIV or certain other viruses have higher risks of getting the cancer. Exposure to pesticides or other chemicals also may play a role.

A cancer epidemiologist who is also a consultant to the Chicago-based National Cattlemen's Beef Association said the Iowa study should be interpreted with great caution.

John D. Boice Jr., who recently left the National Cancer Institute to join a biomedical research company in Rockville, Md., noted that red meat consumption in the United States has declined markedly over the past 20 years, suggesting that the nation's rising rate of non-Hodgkin's lymphoma is due to something else.

Gene found for ADHD

Malcolm Rutter
The Associated Press

NEW YORK -- A gene that was recently linked to excitability in people may also play a role in a childhood disorder marked by hyperactivity, inattention and impulsiveness, a study suggests.

The condition, attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, or ADHD, is estimated to occur in 3 percent to 5 percent of elementary school children.

Scientists say some ADHD cases are due to inherited genes, but they don't know the percentage. One conservative estimate is 20 percent to 30 percent.

No gene for the disorder has been firmly identified, and experts stressed that the finding is still preliminary.

Identifying genes for ADHD could give scientists insight into the biology of the disease. That could lead to better treatments.

Scientists have long suspected that ADHD has something to do with those systems in which brain cells use a substance called dopamine to communicate.

Several months ago, researchers announced evidence that a dopamine-related gene may influence how impulsive, excitable, quick-tempered and extravagant people are. This overall personality trait is called novelty-seeking.

The new work suggests that the same gene is involved in some cases of ADHD, researchers said in the April-May issue of the journal Molecular Psychiatry.

The work was reported by Gerald J. LaHoste and James M. Swanson with colleagues at the University of California at Irvine and Dr. James L. Kennedy of the Clarke Institute of Psychiatry at the University of Toronto.

The gene probably would not bring on ADHD by itself, but in combination with other genetic or non-genetic factors, researchers said.

When brain cells send out dopamine, it is received by structures called dopamine receptors on other cells. The gene that researchers studied tells brain cells how to make one kind of dopamine receptor.

This receptor gene comes in several variants, and researchers found that ADHD was associated with the same variant that the earlier study linked to higher scores on novelty-seeking.

Researchers found that the variant appeared in 49 percent of a group of ADHD children, compared with only 21 percent of other children of the same gender and ethnic background. The two groups contained 39 children each.

The researchers also found that ADHD children who had the variant showed more symptoms than did ADHD children who lacked the variant.

Kennedy called himself "optimistically skeptical" about the finding, noting that he has seen many such initial studies fail to pan out.

Erotic magazines may be prohibited

Henry Stern
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON -- Several Republican congressmen want to ban sales of such magazines as Playboy, Playgirl and Penthouse on U.S. military bases, saying they undermine military families and national defense.

They are sponsoring a measure to be taken up Wednesday by the House National Security Committee that would ban the sale or rental on the bases of any sexually explicit material, including audio or video recordings, and periodicals.

"Uncle Sam should not be subsidizing smut, and there's no other way to characterize this material," Maryland Rep. Roscoe Bartlett said.

Bartlett, New Jersey Rep. Chris Smith and California Rep. Bob Dornan wrote colleagues last week that taxpayers are subsiding the sale of adult magazines because they are discounted along with other goods sold on the bases.

Smith said Tuesday that service people could still buy the magazines at outside newsstands, if they wanted.

The lawmakers released a letter to Smith from Bobbi Obal, the wife of a service member at New Jersey's McGuire Air Force Base.

"As the parent of three children, one 11-year-old boy, I have complained at how carelessly

Raise in wage will help single moms

Connie Cass
The Associated Press

PRINCE GEORGE, Va. — She's a woman, over 20, living in the South and working part time. She may be serving up burgers and fries, but a typical minimum wage earner also might be found tending to the sick, the elderly or children — jobs considered "women's work" and paid as such.

Three out of five workers in line for raises if the minimum wage goes up to $5.15 an hour are women. They are sales clerks and farm workers and janitors, married and single, mothers and daughters still living at home.

"When I started working, my picture of someone making minimum wage was a high school student working in a fast food joint," said Dorothy Metcalf, 26, a teacher in a southern Virginia child care center. "As an adult, it's hard getting by on minimum wage."

When she started at James Child Development Center, Metcalf, 26, was working part time, as do about two-thirds of minimum wage earners. She has since increased her hours — slowing her pursuit of a college degree — and continues to live with her parents, as do a third of workers who would get a raise under President Clinton's proposal to increase the minimum wage.

Clinton favors raising the minimum wage by 90 cents an hour over two years. For full-time workers earning the minimum of $4.25, that's an extra $900 the first year, and $900 more the next.

The issue gained momentum recently when a group of moderate Republicans advocated a $1 increase. But the GOP leadership opposes it as a job-killer.

Women like Metcalf, the middle-class daughter of an Army warrant officer, are an important part of the portrait of minimum wage workers drawn from the government's Current Population Survey, as analyzed by both liberal and conservative think tanks.

Some are single mothers, but more are wives supplementing a husband's income, young women working their way through school, or mothers who prefer part-time jobs.

They are the muddy middle of the minimum wage debate — p workers who don't fit neatly into the arguments pro or con.

Republican opponents of a wage increase focus instead on unskilled teen-agers from poor families, saying they would be hit hardest if a wage increase prompted U.S. companies to shed hundreds of thousands of jobs they could no longer afford.

Fewer than 30 percent of affected workers are teen-agers, however, including many who live at home with middle-class parents.

The Clinton administration talks mostly about working parents, noting that a single breadwinner earning the minimum wage would not make enough to lift a family of four out of poverty, even with the help of food stamps and tax credits.

Yet single parents account for less than 3 percent of those who would get a raise. Married couples relying on a single income are less than 9 percent.

These families bear a disproportionate share of the hardship, however.

Regina Duff, a divorced mother raising three girls, just received a raise this month of 5 cents an hour, putting her one nickel above the minimum wage. She relies on hand-me-down shoes and scrims to take her children to a movie.

"I'm thankful for what I have," said Duff, 29, who also works at the James Center in Prince George. "But I do wish this job paid more. I'd love to take my girls shopping and buy them new clothes."

What unites Duff and Metcalf and other women at the James Center is the type of work they do.

Air Force reveals secret plane

Robert Burns
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Air Force on Tuesday unveiled a unique "stealth" airplane built more than a decade ago in California in the strictest of secrecy. Parts of its pioneering radar-evading design live on in today's B-2 stealth bomber.

Meant to be a surveillance plane that could fly close to a battle front with minimal risk of being detected by radar, the plane was test flown 135 times from 1982-85 but then scrapped. It has been in secret storage ever since.

The Air Force had never before acknowledged the existence of the project, which was code-named Tacit Blue. The plane never flew real surveillance missions.

In declassifying the project, the Air Force provided color photographs and a videotape of the plane in flight. The only one of its kind ever built, the Tacit Blue aircraft will go on public display May 22 at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio.

The plane was built between 1978 and 1982 by Northrop Corp., at its Hawthorne, Calif., plant for $136 million. Lt. Gen. George Muellner told a Pentagon news conference. Testing the plan cost $29 million more,

The Associated Press

The Defense Department released this undated photo, showing a long-secret "stealth" airplane built more than a decade ago for $165 million. The project, code named TACIT BLUE, was meant to develop a radar-evading spy aircraft, but the Air Force gave up on it in 1985.

he said.

"It has been a pretty well-kept secret," Muellner said.

Aircraft enthusiasts have speculated for years about the existence of a super-secret spy plane some dubbed "Aurora," but that plane — which U.S. officials deny ever existed — was supposed to be supersonic.

Tacit Blue was subsonic.

Shaped like no other known military aircraft, Tacit Blue resembles an upside-down bathtub with stubby wings.

Victim's mother to raise infant

Ben Dobbin
The Associated Press

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — A premature baby born six weeks ago to a comatose woman who was raped in a nursing home is being raised by his maternal grandmother, the family's attorney said Tuesday.

Neurologists say it is unlikely the mother, who has been in a chronic vegetative state since a 1985 car crash, retains any conscious awareness of herself, let alone the pregnancy and birth.

In the hospital, the baby boy was brought to her to hold twice a day, but a nurse had to wrap the woman's arms around him.

"Mom would not be able to reach and grasp and hug the child," said Bob Loeb, a spokesman at Strong Memorial Hospital. "Some people observed that she became relaxed a little bit, that she kind of sensed another living thing next to her, but that's all highly subjective."

Born two months premature on March 18, the child is now almost double his birth weight of 2 pounds, 11 ounces. He was taken home Sunday by his grandmother.

"It's more likely to be long-term than short-term," said attorney John Parrinello. "Our next step is to formalize the guardianship and then to decide the form of the relationship between the grandmother and the child."

The woman's Roman Catholic family rejected an abortion on religious grounds. Family members have declined to be interviewed.

Doctors believe it is the first case of someone getting pregnant and having a baby while in a comalike state.

The 30-year-old mother could be discharged later this month from the hospital where the natural childbirth took place, but she's unlikely to be returned to the nursing home in suburban Rochester where she was raped last August.

Communism finds reborn popularity

Deborah Seward
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Restore the Soviet Union and the old social guarantees. Return private property to the state. Turn back economic reforms.

Communists' plans make millions of Russians cheer and many others choke.

Party leaders insist Russia is not in for a new revolution if their candidate, Gennady Zyuganov, wins June presidential elections. But despite Zyuganov's efforts to portray himself as a benign, market-friendly social democrat, interviews with Communist leaders reveal their strong commitment to Soviet-era values and policies.

"Nothing satisfies us. We can't say anything positive about what has happened here, when the country is in ruins," says Valentin Kuptsov, the No. 2 man in the Communist Party.

The anger and determination to undo many of Boris Yeltsin's reforms that emerges during conversations with Communist leaders contrasts with the party program, which is very vague on how to achieve its goals.

Topping the list of tasks the Communists say they would undertake after victory is a sweeping revision of privatization, including wide-scale confiscation of property they believe was illegally acquired.

Privatization, a centerpiece of Yeltsin's reforms, has put thousands of factories and shops into private hands and encouraged Western investment in Russia over the past four years.

Communists detest the program, which created thousands of overnight millionaires and ended the supposed social equality that existed during the Soviet period.

Anatoly Lukyanov, chairman of the old Soviet legislature and one of the 1991 coup plotters against Mikhail Gorbachev, says the party has a fat file on people suspected of violating privatization laws.

"People say we want to take everything away," said Lukyanov. "We don't want to take anything away. We want the state to own what was stolen."

In Russia, where doing almost anything requires a bribe, the Communists could probably catch just about any of the new business owners on a technical violation.

"Everything that was privatized legally should remain so," Kuptsov said. "We don't have a problem with that. Unfortunately in Russia, the majority of cases of privatization directly violated the law and used mafia capital."

Private land is another big Communist no-no.

"Farmland cannot be sold. If we do not ban this, all farmland will be sold to foreign investors, and agricultural production will drop to zero," said Communist lawmaker Yuri Voronin, head of the budget committee in the Duma, the lower house of parliament.

While some Communists, such as Voronin, favor allowing Russians to own land on which to build houses, others firmly oppose all private landholding.

"I think the introduction of private land ownership in Russia is inadmissible," said Valery Voronnikov, a former senior KGB official and member of the Duma's committee on economic security.

Banning private ownership would be easy enough. All it would take is an executive order. But physically seizing the private property would be more difficult, as would restoring state monopolies in strategic metals, gas and oil, and stopping capital flight.

Lebanon refugees mourned

Greg Myre
The Associated Press

QANA, Lebanon — With chants of grief filling the air, 90 wooden coffins were passed hand-over-hand above a frenzied crowd of mourners Tuesday at the mass burial of refugees who died in an Israeli missile attack on a U.N. base.

The procession began with a mass funeral in the coastal city of Tyre, evoking a solidarity seldom seen among Lebanon's Muslims and Christians. Israel's 16-day offensive against the Shiite Muslim guerrillas of Hezbollah unified a country long tormented by its religious and political diversity.

While Qana wept for the men, women and children killed in the April 18 bombardment, Israeli forces and Lebanese guerrillas had their first serious exchange of fire since a cease-fire took effect Saturday. There was no immediate word on casualties.

In Tyre, eight miles west of Qana, the funeral procession was led by turbaned Muslim clergymen and black-robed Christian bishops, golden crucifixes glittering on their chests in a display of unanimity not seen since a February 1994 bombing of a Catholic church north of Beirut killed 10.

Sheik Mohammed Shamseddine, Lebanon's top Shiite cleric, told mourners: "The Jews have committed a holocaust in Lebanon."

Prime Minister Rafik Hariri, a Sunni Muslim, stood next to Shamseddine. Nearby stood Catholic bishops who represent 45 percent of Lebanon's 4 million people. Muslims make up the remainder of Lebanon's religious mosaic.

The mass killing of the villagers provoked unprecedented anger from Lebanon's Christians, once believed to be relatively sympathetic to Israel. It also fueled an international uproar.

In Qana, thousands of mourners jammed a vacant lot and climbed buildings overlooking the mass grave next to the U.N. base where Lebanese civilians had thought they were safe from the fighting between Israel and the Hezbollah guerrillas.

In an outpouring of raw emotion, young men beat their chests with clenched fists in a traditional Shiite expression of grief. Women wailed and shrieked hysterically, and many fainted.

Volunteers sprayed water from a hose in an effort to cool down the sweaty crowd, pressed body-to-body in the heat of the midday sun.

In chants that grew progressively louder, the crowd shouted Islam's battle cry "Allahu Akbar!" or "God is Great," drowning out the somber music from a Boy Scout brass band.

Ahmed Azakir/The Associated Press

A young member of a Muslim girl scouting organization lays a rose on a coffin during a mass funeral in the southern Lebanese port of the city of Tyre. The ceremony was for 91 civilians killed in an Israeli artillery attack on a U.N. base in Qana in southern Lebanon on April 18.

The coffins were brought to the main street in Qana until they reached the jam-packed gravesite. They were then passed forward on the raised hands of the mourners.

Hundreds of soldiers, civil defense workers and mourners took part in a chaotic effort to remove the wrapped bodies from the coffins and then lower them into the grave, side-by-side.

The 60-by-60-foot mass grave is adjacent to the Fijian base of the U.N. peacekeeping force where the victims perished, many so blown to shreds that the exact death toll may never be known.

"We feel total despair," said a tearful Alia Saad. "We'll never forget this terrible disaster."

She and her family of nine survived the artillery attack, which Israel said was an attempt to hit Hezbollah guerrillas who had fired rockets 300 yards away from the U.N. base.

At graveside, a black poster read in Arabic: "In Qana Jesus Christ Performed His Miracles. In Qana Shimon Peres Staged His Murderous Debacles."

Many Lebanese contend Qana is the biblical site where Jesus changed water into wine, his first miracle. But Christian scholars around the world insist the Qana mentioned in the Bible is in northern Israel's Galilee region.

The Qana victims were among the 162 people known to have died all in Lebanon and most of them civilians during Israel's 16-day bombing blitz against the Hezbollah, or Party of God. About 340 people were wounded.

Fewer than half of the bodies of the Qana victims could be identified. Estimates of the death toll range from 91 to more than 100. In addition to the 90 coffins brought to Qana, the remains of a Christian woman were interred.

Men's tennis team takes fourth at MAC Championship

Paul Markoff
The BG News

The Bowling Green men's tennis team entered the Mid-American Championship in fourth place and left the tournament in the same position as the Falcons finished the 1995-96 campaign in Kalamazoo.

The Falcons opened the tournamant at 10-9 overall and 3-3 in conference play. The team hoped to defeat Western Michigan in the tournament and finish as one of the top three teams in the conference. The Falcons finished in fourth place with 41 total points, just four points shy of Western Michigan. Miami won the MAC championship finishing with 58 points, and Ball State finished in second place with 53 points.

Falcon coach Dave Morin was extremely pleased with the Falcons performance in round one but felt the team fell apart in the second round. "We had a very good first day at the tournament. We were tied for first with Miami and Ball State and ahead of Western Michigan," Morin stated. "We played as poor the second day as we did great the first day. We were blown out in every match."

The lone bright spot for the Falcons was the first doubles squad of sophomore Adam Tropp and senior Mark Clochetto. Tropp and Clochetto finished in second place at the tournament and set two school records in the process. Clochetto set a new school record for doubles victories with 69, finishing one victory ahead of Bowling Green alumnus Jim Demos. The Tropp/Clochetto combo also set the school record for most doubles win in a single season with 25. Morin was very impressed with the tandems play during the tournament.

"Tropp and Cio had a great tournament," Morin said. "The semi-finals match they played was as good as they've played all year."

Other Falcons performed well at the tournament at both singles and doubles flights. Junior Joel Terman and Ryan Gabel finished third at the fifth and sixth singles

Odds are against Cavaliers

Chris Sheridan
The Associated Press

NEW YORK -- The Cleveland Cavaliers, winners of their last three games at Madison Square Garden, came to town Tuesday looking to become only the sixth team in NBA history to recover from an 0-2 deficit and win a five-game series.

There is a tremendous home-court disadvantage in the Knicks-Cavs series, with the road team winning 12 of the last 14 games. Game 3 is Wednesday night at 7 p.m.

New York hasn't defeated Cleveland at home in more than a year. The Cavs beat the Knicks by 10 in December and by four in early April.

"As Terrell Brandon says: Lights, camera, action. They feel comfortable playing here," Knicks coach Jeff Van Gundy said.

Cleveland also won its last playoff game at the Garden, 90-84 in the first round last season to even that series 1-1. The Cavs eventually lost 3-1 by losing two straight at Gund Arena.

New York has had 15 losses at home this season -- the most in five years.

"It's been a steady decline since we were 37-4 (in 1992-93). I don't have an answer for that. We've got to find a way to reverse that trend at home," Van Gundy said. "It's a great concern, particularly because Cleveland has handed us not only this year, but more so last year. They blew us out both times, I mean big time. They had us down by 25 both games."

But Cavaliers coach Mike Fratello wasn't expecting a let-down from the Knicks, especially since New York is looking at a probable second-round matchup with the Chicago Bulls.

"New York will try to end its series as soon as quickly as they can so they will have the same preparation time, the same rest time, etc. (as the Bulls). The last thing they want to do is go into a

Panthers have familiar look

Florida could be a surprise as NHL playoffs continue

Ken Rappoport
The Associated Press

The Florida Panthers could be this year's version of the New Jersey Devils.

Like the Devils of last season, the Panthers face long odds to win the Stanley Cup. And so far, they have made a vivid impression in the playoffs with their grinding, physical play and neutral-zone trap defense.

"We have to go out and believe we can beat anybody," said captain Brian Skrudland as the Panthers prepared to meet the Philadelphia Flyers in a second-round Eastern Conference playoff series starting

Thursday night in Philadelphia.

Chicago plays at Colorado in a Western Conference opener Thursday night. The playoffs continue Friday with New York at Pittsburgh in the East and St. Louis at Detroit in the West.

Like the Devils before them, the Panthers will seemingly have to prove themselves in each succeeding playoff round.

As the lower-seeded team in the East, they will be the underdog in each round. And if they do make it to the Stanley Cup Finals, they would have the home-ice advantage only if St. Louis manages to pull off an upset in the West.

But even though the Panthers haven't gotten the national recognition of other teams in their conference, the Flyers are well aware of their capabilities.

They split their season series 2-2-1, with each team scoring 10 goals. The Panthers outshot the Flyers 130-122. Something else for the Flyers to consider: The Panthers haven't lost in their last five visits to the Spectrum.

Flyers captain Eric Lindros doesn't think it will be a day at the beach against Florida.

"It's not going to be flag football," Lindros said. "They're really forechecking hard. And we'll be facing great goaltending."

That would be John Vanbiesbroeck, perhaps the biggest name on this low-profile team.

The Panthers did finish fourth in the Eastern Conference, 11 points behind the champion Flyers. Their 92 points were the most in the history of their three-year-old franchise.

"They're a big, strong physical team," Panthers coach Doug Maclean said of the Flyers. "But I hear everybody say how tough we are in the playoffs."

The Panthers only needed five games to beat the Boston Bruins in the first round. The Flyers needed six to eliminate the Tampa Bay Lightning.

Cleveland edges White Sox

The Associated Press

CLEVELAND -- Jim Thome homered and drove in three runs Tuesday night as the Cleveland Indians beat the White Sox 5-3, ending Chicago's seven-game winning streak.

Three Cleveland pitchers limited the White Sox to four hits, and Julio Franco drove in the go-ahead run with a sixth-inning single that ricocheted off relief pitcher Brian Keyser.

Dennis Martinez (4-2) allowed three runs and three hits in seven innings, including a first-inning home run by Frank Thomas. Jim Poole pitched a perfect eighth, and Jose Mesa worked the ninth for his ninth save in nine tries.

Kevin Tapani (2-1) couldn't hold an early 3-0 lead, giving up four runs, nine hits and four walks in 5 1-3 innings.

Thome drove in two runs with a two-out, bases-loaded single in the third inning, then tied it at 3 with his leadoff home run in the sixth.

Pirates blast Cinci

The Associated Press

CINCINNATI -- Jeff King hit a solo homer and a grand slam in a nine-run fourth inning night Tuesday night as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat Cincinnati 10-7, the Reds' eighth consecutive defeat.

King became the third player in major-league history to have a two-homer inning for the second time in his career. He also homered twice, in an inning last Aug. 8 against San Francisco.

Orlando Merced and Jacob Brumfield added solo homers to help Denny Neagle (3-1) get his first road victory of the season. The left-hander allowed five runs and 10 hits over six-plus innings, coasting behind the big lead.

Massimino returns as Vikings coach

Thomas J. Sheeran
The Associated Press

CLEVELAND -- Rollie Massimino, who coached Villanova to an NCAA basketball championship but faltered as Jerry Tarkanian's successor at UNLV, was hired Tuesday as the coach at Cleveland State.

Massimino, who is returning to coaching after a two-year absence, replaces Mike Boyd, who resigned March 25.

"I felt I wanted to coach," Massimino said. "It didn't make any difference what it took. I wanted to be part of young people."

Massimino, 61, replaced Tarkanian at UNLV in 1992 but left in 1994 with a $1.8 million buyout amid fan displeasure over his slower-paced basketball and disclosure of a supplemental contract with the UNLV athletic department. He was 36-21 in two seasons with the Rebels.

Massimino signed a four-year contract with Cleveland State that will pay him a base salary of $100,000 a year. He also has the opportunity to run a basketball camp and do radio and television work. He said he will disclose all aspects of the contract.

Boyd was 79-88 in six seasons at Cleveland State. The other finalists to replace him were Bob Weltlich, former coach at Mississippi, Texas and Florida International, former Southern California coach Charlie Parker and former California coach Lou Campanelli.

Massimino won the NCAA championship in 1985 at Villanova, where he had an 18-year record of 357-241.

He said it would take time to rebuild the Cleveland State program but said his experience at Villanova might be a model. His initial goals are to win a Midwestern Collegiate Conference, go to a major tournament and then "one never knows."

"I feel that kids are kids and student-athletes are student-athletes," he said. "I think they all want to be disciplined. They Ronald Johnson of Phoenix leads the Olympic torch through Yuma, Ariz., early Tuesday.

Olympic torch makes way through downtown Phoenix

Walter Berry
The Associated Press

PHOENIX -- Construction workers mingled with office workers Tuesday as thousands of gawkers lined downtown streets to catch a glimpse of the Olympic flame.

"It's like watching a little bit of history happen right before your eyes," said Tom Barnowski, an office manager who watched one relay as a runner stopped to light the torch of the next in line.

"This is the closest I'll ever get to an Olympic anything," said Marnia Valasquez, who drove 100 miles from her Marana home to see the flame before it headed to Nevada on Wednesday. "I just had to come."

The flame arrived in Phoenix Tuesday morning after a 172-mile trip from Yuma by freight train -- only the second time in the history of the Games that it has traveled by rail.

The 19-car Union Pacific train took off for Phoenix at dawn to mark the start of a 42-city, whistle-stop tour that will end in Chicago on June 3.

The train will carry the flame along rail segments as part of the relay's 15,000-mile journey from Los Angeles to Atlanta, where the Olympics begin July 19.

The torch relay began Saturday in Los Angeles and bicyclists from California carried the flame to the Arizona border Monday night. A series of relay runners then carried the flame into Yuma.

A 40-inch raised cauldron on the train's last car was lighted with the relay flame, and a curtain of air around the cauldron formed a tunnel that shields the 4-foot flame at speeds of up to 70 mph.

The only other time the flame has moved by rail was for a short stretch in Norway on its way to the 1952 Olympiad in Helsinki, Finland.

Several hundred people at Phoenix's Union Station erupted in cheers as 16-year-old Juwan Nuvawokva accepted a 32-inch torch almost half his height and ran the relay's first kilometer.

Hopi tribal chairman Ferrell Secakuku sprinkled corn meal on the pavement in front of Nuvawokva to give him good luck.

"I just wanted to do it right. It's a great honor to be the first one," said Nuvawokva, a two-time boys' state cross-country champion at Hopi High School in northern Arizona. "I'd like to be an Olympian someday hopefully. It's one of my dreams."

Commentary: Woods should turn pro as soon as he can

Ron Sirak
The Associated Press

Tiger Woods, the best amateur since Jack Nicklaus, likely will be a professional golfer by the end of the summer. And the timing seems perfect.

Despite coy responses from Woods and his family's insistence that he finish college, most golf insiders expect the 20-year-old Stanford sophomore to turn pro after the U.S. Amateur in August, especially if he wins the NCAA tournament in June.

With that accomplished, there seems to be no reason why Woods, who turns 21 in December, shouldn't start playing for pay. The track record for getting started young is pretty good.

Nick Faldo turned pro at 19. Nicklaus and Greg Norman were 21.

And, by the time Seve Ballesteros was 21, he led the European PGA Tour money list three times and had tied for second with Nicklaus in the 1976 British Open at age 19, behind Johnny Miller.

By 23, Ballesteros had won 20 tournaments worldwide, including the British Open, the Masters and one PGA Tour stop.

Woods, who has four firsts, three seconds and a third in 10 college tournaments this year, was simply awesome in the Pac-10 Championships, opening with a 61-65 to take a 14-stroke lead.

There seems to be no reason for Woods to stay an amateur.

"Despite the denials, the general feeling of people in golf is that he will be a pro by the end of the summer," said one source connected to the business side of the game. Several other sources agreed with that thinking.

What about the desire of his father, Earl, and mother, Kutilda, that Tiger get a college degree?

"People are saying he will drop out of school and turn pro," another golf insider said. "But he can do both, play pro and stay in school. He can make up his own schedule and it won't be as strenuous as college golf. That way he can satisfy his parents' desire that he get a college degree."

Earl Woods was unhappy when the NCAA made Tiger reimburse Arnold Palmer for a $25 dinner last year. And the elder Woods had to give up his job as a talent scout for International Management Group, the agency that manages Palmer, when Tiger entered Stanford for fear the NCAA would object.

"My plans haven't changed," Woods said at the Masters. "I went to college to get an education. That's most important. And if I'm playing golf better than a year ago, I'm also enjoying the college experience more than a year ago."

Notice, he talked about education and the college experience, not college golf.

One thing missing from Woods' resume is the NCAA individual championship.

Nicklaus won it in 1961 and turned pro later that year. Woods, who was fifth last year, will try again May 29-June 1 in Chattanooga, Tenn. If he wins it, Woods will maintain his pace to match Nicklaus achievement for achievement.

In August, Woods tries to win the U.S. Amateur for the third consecutive year. No one has done that. Not Nicklaus. Not Bobby Jones. With that done, what other reason would there be for Woods to stay an amateur?

If Woods turned pro after the U.S. Amateur, he could play in some PGA Tour events on sponsor exemptions. Non-tour members are allowed seven a year.

Then he could either go to qualifying school in December or earn his tour card next year on the Nike Tour. After earning his tour card, Woods need only play in 15 events a year to keep it allowing him the chance to enter the tour at a leisurely pace.

Even his idol says Woods can't miss.

"You can probably take Arnold's Masters and my Masters, add them together, and this kid should win more than that," Nicklaus said. "This kid is absolutely the most fundamentally sound golfer that I've seen at almost any age."

Nicklaus' prediction that Woods will win 10 Masters may be a little excessive, but it gives an idea of how much he has impressed.

Those expectations will be Woods' greatest burden.

Woods has the ability to compete on the pro level. He has shown that on the course. He has the smarts. He has shown that in the interview room and by getting into Stanford.

And he has the maturity to handle the pressures of big-time golf.

Tiger Woods is ready. So are pro golf fans. No need keeping them apart any longer.

Blades pleads no contest

The Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. --

Seattle Seahawks receiver Brian Blades pleaded no contest Tuesday to a manslaughter charge stemming from the death of his cousin in a July 5 shooting.

Charles Blades died of a gunshot to the head. The former University of Miami player was charged with shooting his cousin with a 38-caliber semiautomatic handgun at the player's home.

"I want to be able to prevent any more suffering to Charles' family, my family, my teammates, my friends and our children," Blades said in a statement to Broward County Judge Susan Lebow. "Nothing can change the events of July 4th (sic) of last year. Nothing can bring Charles back."

A sentencing hearing was set for May 28. The no contest plea comes after Blades had claimed his innocence for months, saying the shooting was an accident.

According to the arrest warrant, the shooting occurred when Brian Blades intervened in an argument between his brother Bennie, a defensive back for the Detroit Lions, and Bennie's ex-girlfriend.

Unbridled's Song still uncertain for Derby

Ed Schuyler Jr.
The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — While Unbridled's Song remained in the Kentucky Derby picture Tuesday, the colt might not start in the race.

"If he makes as much improvement in 24 hours as he did from last night to today, I think you'll see him Saturday," trainer Jim Ryerson said about the early Derby favorite, who has a left front hoof and heel problem. "It's a day-by-day thing."

Entries must be made by 5 p.m. EDT Wednesday, with post-position draw to be held at about 6:15 p.m.

The Derby betting favorite could become Skip Away, winner of the Blue Grass Stakes on April 13 at Keeneland.

Ryerson revealed on Monday that Unbridled's Song had a quarter crack (a small hoof crack) and a heel cut that were discovered after his victory in the Wood Memorial at Aqueduct — the same day as the Blue Grass.

The gray colt has been wearing a bar shoe that keeps the heel from hitting the ground.

The shoe was removed Monday and the foot was soaked, and a new shoe was put on Tuesday morning. The new shoe is called a Z-bar, which, Ryerson said, enables the injured heel to be treated more easily.

"Well, it seems like there was some aggravation," Ryerson said in explaining why the shoe was changed and the foot soaked. "He's a little tender in one area. That's why we changed the shoe. I don't know whether you want to call it an infection."

Ryerson did say Unbridled's Song was being treated with antibiotics, but he said the colt would have no problem passing a post-race test.

Unbridled's Song went to the Churchill Downs track at 9:30 a.m. and walked and jogged with a lead pony.

"I'm happy the way he went," Ryerson said. "I'm happy the way he cooled out. We have four days and if everything goes well, he'll run. I'm going to look at it positively until I can't anymore."

Ryerson said he might breeze Unbridled's Song on Thursday, but that the colt could go into the race without another workout.

Skip Away, impressive in winning the Blue Grass by six lengths, worked five-eighths of a mile Monday in 1:00 2-5.

"I feel very confident," said Sonny Hine, who trains Skip Away, also a gray colt, for his wife Carolyn. "If he stays as he is, he's got a good chance."

"I thought that horse was awesome in the Blue Grass," trainer Ron McNally, who will start Matty G, said of Skip Away. "I sort of think he's the horse to beat off that race."

Two other Derby trainers, however, doubt Skip Away can repeat his Blue Grass performance.

"As a trainer, I've never had a horse run like that and come back and duplicate it in his next race," said Bob Baffert, trainer of Santa Anita Derby winner Cavonnier and Semoran. "If he does, he (Hine) has a Triple Crown winner."

"I don't think you want your horse to run a career race in the race before the Derby," said Dr. Wayne Lukas, who will saddle a record five horses for the Derby. "Sometimes you get it whether you want it or not. Sonny's horse did it."

Lukas will saddle Editor's Note, Grindstone, Honour and Glory, Prince of Thieves and Victory Speech.

None will be going into the Derby off a victory, but, Lukas said, "I think I've got a solid group of horses."

Should one of them win, Lukas would extend his unprecedented string of victories.

NFL owners approve Oilers' move to Nashville this year

Paul Newberry
The Associated Press

ATLANTA — NFL owners voted Tuesday to allow the Houston Oilers to move to Nashville, Tenn.

"It passed," said Alex Spanos, owner of the San Diego Chargers, emerging from a 4 1/2-hour meeting. "Houston is moving to Tennessee."

Still uncertain was when the team will actually move to the Tennessee capital. The Oilers have a lease with the Astrodome through 1997.

Also, the deal is contingent on Nashville residents approving a May 7 referendum on the $292 million deal. Polls suggest overwhelming support for plans to bring the state its first major league franchise.

The Oilers would be the seventh NFL team to switch cities since 1982 — and the fourth in the past year.

Unlike the impassioned effort to keep the Browns from moving from Cleveland to Baltimore, a "Save The Oilers" campaign failed to generate much interest. The team has played to thousands of empty seats in recent seasons and a rally earlier this year attracted less than 50 people.

"I'd hardly call that an emotional outpouring," New York Giants co-owner Robert Tisch said before the vote.

all want to work hard. They all want to graduate and, most especially, they want to win.

"Again, I say patience ... it can only happen if it's done by these people," he said with a wave at players attending the announcement.

Massimino was introduced by university president Claire Van Ummersen, who gave him a green and white Cleveland State baseball cap. Massimino briefly wore it, then took it off.

Athletic director John Konstantinos said Massimino met the criteria the school was seeking — head coaching experience, a clean NCAA record and the ability to excite players and fans.

"The man is a proven winner," Konstantinos said. "He has coached and won at every level beginning with high school."

Despite a mediocre performance at the MAC championships, Morin feels the season was a success. "Although we didn't finish in the top three, we had a good year," Morin stated. "We had a couple of matches we could have won, but overall I'm pleased with our season."
